The Mountains exhibit at the Aquarium is a place where you can see animals and plants that live in South Carolina’s mountains.
The Mountains are a little different than the rest of the Aquarium’s exhibits.

There are high rock walls and splashing waterfalls. These things will not hurt you and are fun to look at.

The Mountains are a little dark and the temperature is cooler, but there is nothing to be scared of.

Nothing will hurt you in the Mountains.
There are animals to look at in the Mountains. There are playful otters, swimming fish and a few birds living on top of the rocks. All of the animals stay in their exhibits, or homes, and will not hurt you.
Walk through the doors beside Liberty the bald eagle to explore the Mountains. Remember that nothing will hurt you in the Mountains.

A family member and Aquarium workers will be there to help you and answer any questions you have.
