

Exploring the Saltmarsh

Aquarium Stories

The Saltmarsh is an outdoor exhibit at the South Carolina Aquarium that has birds, fish, stingrays and turtles for you to see. The Saltmarsh is different from the rest of the Aquarium, but it is still fun to explore and see the animals.

South Carolina
Aquarium

Exploring the Saltmarsh

Aquarium Stories

The Saltmarsh is different because it is an outside area.

You might hear and see boats that are in the Charleston harbor, but they are far away and will not hurt you.

Birds in the Saltmarsh might fly around, but they will not hurt you.

The stingrays swimming in the tank might splash, but they will not hurt you.

Exploring the Saltmarsh

Aquarium Stories

The Saltmarsh might be different from the other parts of the Aquarium, but it is still fun and safe to explore. It is fun to watch the stingrays swimming in their tank. You can't touch them, but you can watch them swimming around. You can watch fish and terrapin turtles swimming in the water.

Exploring the Saltmarsh

Aquarium Stories

It is fun to try different things that are safe. The Saltmarsh is a safe place to explore and learn about animals. You will be safe and have fun exploring the Saltmarsh!

